Commissions & Expectations

SALES ASSOCIATE TRAINING GUIDE / Reference material + knowledge check

01 How a sale becomes commission-eligible

A qualified completed sale in this training means the customer has proceeded with the approved purchase and the client payment has successfully processed. An interested lead, verbal agreement, sent preview, or unprocessed invoice does not by itself make the commission eligible.

The training commission amount is $30 per eligible sale. Check the active signed compensation agreement for the exact compensation terms applicable to you.

Collection or paycheck inclusion

Once the payment processes and the sale is eligible, the commission may be collected or added to the associate's paycheck through the approved company process. Eligibility is not the same as proof that a payment has already been disbursed.

Example workflow

- Prospect agrees to purchase -> continue the required customer steps.
- Client payment processes successfully -> sale becomes commission-eligible.
- The eligible $30 training commission moves through the approved collection or payroll process.
- Once paid to the associate -> mark the commission Earned / Complete.

02 Understand your Earnings dashboard

Status	What it means
Waiting on Client Payment	A purchase may be in progress, but the customer payment has not successfully processed.
Pending	The customer paid; the commission is eligible but not yet paid out to the associate.
Earned / Complete	The eligible commission has been paid out or included in a completed paycheck.

No fixed payout schedule is stated here. Confirm payout timing, collection requirements, payroll timing, and any applicable conditions in the signed agreement and current company procedure.

03 Refunds, cancellations and chargebacks

A refund, cancellation or chargeback may affect a sale or commission. The precise handling must follow the signed commission agreement and current management procedures. This guide does not establish an automatic clawback, penalty, or repayment rule.

If a customer disputes a charge, report it promptly. Preserve accurate records and refer the matter to management rather than promising a specific outcome.

04 Professional expectations

- Communicate honestly: represent products, services and prices accurately. Never invent guarantees or discounts.
- Document your work: keep lead notes, contact outcomes, scheduled callbacks and pipeline stages current.
- Respect prospects: follow preferences, refusals and follow-up instructions; do not pressure a customer.
- Call responsibly: respect the prospect's local time, the company's recommended calling window and all applicable telemarketing rules.
- Seek help when needed: escalate payment issues, missing commissions, disputes, uncertain pricing and customer concerns.
- Track activity accurately: use Outreach to record calls, follow-ups and status changes; goals and shift requirements come from your current approved policy.

05 Knowledge check

Choose one answer per question. In the interactive HTML edition, you receive immediate feedback and the question is highlighted. Use the answer key below when reviewing the printed PDF.

1. When does a commission become eligible under the training rule?

A. When a prospect says they are interested

B. When the client payment successfully processes

C. As soon as a preview is sent

2. What is the commission amount used in this training?

A. $20

B. $30

C. $50

3. A customer agrees to buy, but payment has not processed. Which status fits best?

A. Waiting on Client Payment

B. Earned / Complete

C. Paid Out

4. A customer payment processed, but the commission has not been paid to the associate. Which status best fits?

A. Waiting on Client Payment

B. Pending

C. Earned / Complete

5. A prospect asks you to promise guaranteed sales from their new website. What should you do?

A. Guarantee results to close the sale

B. Explain accurately what the service includes, without guarantees

C. Avoid writing down the conversation

6. What should you do if a commission amount or status appears incorrect?

A. Change records without permission

B. Ignore the discrepancy

C. Document the issue and ask management to review

Knowledge check — answers

1. B — When the client payment successfully processes

A completed sale requires successful processing of the client payment.

2. B — $30

$30 is the training commission figure; the signed compensation agreement governs.

3. A — Waiting on Client Payment

Interest or an agreement alone does not mean payment has processed.

4. B — Pending

Pending means an eligible commission awaits collection or inclusion in payroll.

5. B — Explain accurately what the service includes, without guarantees

Honesty includes avoiding unapproved performance claims.

6. C — Document the issue and ask management to review

Keep accurate notes and escalate through the approved support process.

06 Frequently asked questions

Does an unpaid client mean I earned a commission?

No. Under the training rule, the client payment must successfully process before the sale becomes commission-eligible.

Can I collect the commission or have it added to my paycheck?

Once eligible, the commission can be collected or included in a paycheck, subject to the applicable agreement and approved payout process.

When will I be paid?

No universal payout date is specified in this guide. The signed agreement and the company's current approved payout procedure determine timing.

What happens if a customer requests a refund or there is a chargeback?

Follow the signed commission agreement and management's current refund, cancellation, and chargeback procedures. Do not assume an automatic deduction or repayment rule.

How do I report a missing commission?

Record the customer/business, payment date if known, expected amount, and relevant sales notes. Contact the appropriate manager for review.

What if I am unsure of a product or price?

Check the current approved price guide or ask management before promising anything to a prospect.

Policy note: Use your signed agreement and latest approved internal policies when making actual commission, payroll, refund or compliance decisions.